Everyone has mental health; it affects all aspects of your life. It’s okay to talk about what’s going on inside your head. Mental health is as important to consider as physical health, it is part of everyday life so don’t be afraid to talk about it.

Find someone who is
- friendly
- non judgemental
- caring
- clear
- a good listener
- empathetic
- informed
- understanding
- respectful
- laid back

What’s this for?
This card is to help you to talk about mental health and get the help and support you need. It has information on where, how and who to get support from with mental health.

When you feel that you’re ready
STEP 1
Find someone you feel you can trust and plan what you want to speak about.
STEP 2
Decide what you are comfortable talking about rather than opening up too much before you feel ready.
STEP 3
Take it one step at a time, don’t be scared. Talk sooner rather than later.

Managing what’s on your mind
- It’s okay not to be okay
- Listen to music, draw, scribble or colour in
- Try keeping a diary, notebook or blog on how you are feeling
- Spend time with friends
- Ask for help
- Try and eat regular, healthy meals and get plenty of sleep
- Stay active, go for a run, jog or walk

Try and eat regular, healthy meals and get plenty of sleep

There are no right or wrong things to feel, people all feel different things at different times and lots of things can affect this; from family life to school and work. Sometimes people can get a bit overwhelmed and the best thing they can do is to find someone who will listen and help them get support. You can use this card to start a conversation with a friend, family member or when contacting one of the places listed overleaf to get support.
How are you feeling and doing?

These circles contain words that help describe thoughts and feelings. We all have ups and downs in our life, but if you think that you are feeling more of the things at the bottom of this diagram then it’s a good idea to find someone to talk to. This can be anyone that you feel you can trust and will listen, you are not alone and help is available. To find out more on how and where to get help and support look on the right hand side of this card.

Where can you get help and support?

Sometimes you can sort out a problem on your own, but if you have a worry that you can’t cope with, don’t bottle it up. It can really help if you talk to someone, or you can contact some of these places, where support is available:

It’s okay not to be okay

Thank you to all the young people who have helped produce this guide for others by using their own personal experiences of coping with mental health.
